EDINBURGH
xtraordinary futures await

Join one of the UK's largest, oldest, and most international departments of History, where you will be part of a vibrant culture of inquiry and debate, led by our dedicated team of historians.

The University of Edinburgh delivers world-leading research and knowledge exchange, drawing upon our exceptional archival and library collections. We have a number of cross-School research groups and seminar series within the School of History, Classics and Archaeology.

The School has three research centres: the Centre for the Study of Modern and Contemporary History; the Edinburgh Centre for Global History; and the Centre for Late Antique, Islamic and Byzantine Studies. Graduate students participate actively in our lively research culture through our research groups and centres, and through staff- and student-led workshops and seminars.

Our staff can supervise topics spanning two millennia and five continents. We have strong research concentrations in African, British, Caribbean, Latin American, and Scottish history, in addition to global and transnational history. Our historians collaborate with colleagues elsewhere in the University, including Asian Studies, Economics, English Literature, History of Art, Law, and Politics.
